Showcase description

Hi! I'm Veronica, an Italian graphic designer, web designer and illustrator. I start every new project by just looking around me: finding beauty in the often overlooked small things and trying not to take myself too seriously. I've been in and around the world of graphic design, web design and illustration for about 3 years, even if I've always been fascinated by all kinds of graphics applied. In addition, I am particularly passionate to the illustration's world: I have always loved drawing, since I was a child it was enough to hold a pencil in my hand and have my hands stained with colors to be happy. I also want to underline that in the last academic year I took care of the design and the programming several websites for various school projects and it has fascinated me and amused too. For me writing in HTML and CSS has become almost a puzzle to solve and, maybe, that's why I also enjoy programming. For this reason, in the last years I studied at Mohole School: to put in practice what I had studied previously at university and, of course, to make this passion a fundamental part of my daily life.
